Mr, and Mrs. Kirk Armour's trolley party for their son, Watson, was given Wednesday evening, having been postponed from Tuesday evening on account of rain. The evening was delightfully cool and every provision had been made for the pleasure of the young guesis, who thus had the good fortune to enjoy a trolley party in its very best estate. Four negro musicinas entertained the party with popular songs, as the car sped away to independence and then hack to Fairmount park.

The Fairmount hotel was gally decorated with Japanese lanterns and an hour was spent in dancing in the large hail. The guests then returned to the car, where they found the small tables daintily prepared for the serving of refreshments, every detail being complete even to the houtonnieres and corsage bouquets. The guesis were: Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Armour's trolley party known as the "Daphnes," which has for several winters studied literature, history and the line arits, with effectair feterence to the latter, under the able guidance of Mrs. Flavel B. Tiffany, has issued its year book for 188-99.

The book is of goodly size, bound in heavy rough paper of a pale blue tint, and with the name of the class and the year embossed in deep blue upon the front. The thirst page bears an excellent full length portrait of Mrs. Tiffany, and just beyond is a photograph of the handsome Tiffany home on Troost avenue, which has been made notable by the peculiarly charming hospitality extended by Mrs. Tiffany and the art class and by the high character of their work in their chosen field.

The coming winter's study will be of France and Italy, a field of inexhaustible richness. Each city will be studied according to the following schedule:

1. Site, with regard to reaching the great centers of the world.

2. Topography.

3. Size; derivation of the name.

4. History—mysic or legendary, civil and positical: in literature; in art; in music.

5. Public buildings—architecture and history of enthedrals and other churches, noted works of art in museams.

6. Purks and gardens.

7. Monuments erected to the memory of the great.

The irrst meeting of the class will be on October 6, and will be devoted to missic, the election of oldeers and the relation of vacation experiences. On October 12, the election of oldeers and the relation of vacation experiences. Engineers judge of the condition of their machinery by the tone it gives out while running. Every engine, whether stationary or locomotive, has a particular tone of its own: the engineer becomes accustomed to that, and any departure from it at once excites a suspicion that all is not right. The engineer may not know what is the matter, he may have no ear for music, but the change in the tone of his machine will be at once perceptible, will be instantly recognized, and will start him on an immediate tour of investigation. points. How to Age Quickly.

From an Exchange.

Think you are growing old and you will soon grow old. Take your place obedient. It in the groove long made by custom for people of middle age. Separate yourself entirely from the young. Kill all inclination to indulge inwhaat are called "youthful sports." Cultivate in your limbs dignity, slowness and stiffness; regard with serenity your slowly escaping vigor, suppleness and elasticity of muscle.

Don't recognize that every new interest is a fresh grip on life, and that as we lose interest the grip relaxes its hold. Learn nothing new; say it's now too late, and that your dancing days are over. Be ashamed of taking up any new study or pursuit.

There are belos all around you to as-ashamed of taking up any new study or pursuit.

There are helps all around you to assist you in growing old; kind friends from time to time will comment on the appearance of gray hair or a line in your face. Cease all attempt at reformation or improvement in any direction. Say to yourself: "It's no use to me at my time of life." Fret a good deal and hate a good deal. Worry over everything and fly into tempers. Think the worst things you can of all the people you know; look on the dark side of everything.

In your eating and drinking study only your palate. Regard all as cranky and crotchety who talk of eating for health as well as pleasure's sake.

Shawis are in fashion again. Pretty, soft silk and fine wool shawis are being very much used both in the mountains and at the seashore. A shawl is a powerful weapon if woman only knows how to use it. The time was when no fashionable woman thought her wardrobe complete unless it contained six or eight shawls, all sizes, shapes and materials. To-day the up-to-date girl is quite content with two; but two she must have. The first one is a very fine bright colored plaid shawl which takes the place of a steamer rug for country use and is much lighter and more easily carried, and the other is a very cobwebby silk shawl or one of loosely knitted yarn to be wern on cool evenings at a summer resort. The shawl is the most convenient of all wraps, for it is warm, graceful, does not crush the gown and never gets out of order. From the New York Sun. A Dainty Baby Blanket.

A unique baby blanket is made of white broadcloth embroidered in white silk, in conventional designs. It is lined with white surah and the edge finished in exquisite white ribbon. Three baby afghans seen recently were made of white eiderdown flannel. The size was thirty-two inches by thirty-eight. One was lined with pink, another with light blue and the third with lemon colored silk. A row of ribbon embroidery (done in narrow baby ribbon) to match the lining, made a pretty finish about two inches from the edge; a large bow of broad satin ribbon to match the lining was placed near one corner.
